SENIOR HOCKEY

Who said the Seniors were too old to play the game. On Friday last they put up a game against the Castor team. That was a surprise to the natives. The puck was faced at 8:30, and Castor made a brilliant start, but Lacombe kept the rubber continuously on Castor's goal, and but for the fine work of their goal keeper would have scored several times. The game was fairly clean, only a couple of questionable checks being made. Castor made some fine shots from centre ice and succeeded in scoring three, but Lacombe kept hard at it and tied them. In the last half Castor's team did not show up so well and failed to score. While all the locals put up a good game, the work of Fleming and Hay was of the real stuff, and the spectators were loud in their praise of the fine combination work of the two players. The last two goals scored for the locals were made by Fleming, who brought the rubber clean from the far end and scored, which was some feat for an intermediate against such players as Castor. "Daddy" Reid was very noticeable during the game. Final score—Lacombe 6, Castor 3. Following was the line-up:

Grandstand Legislation For Alberta Farmers

This editorial is in defense of "the trusts," if you wish to look at it in that light. Personally, we take the view that it is in defense of the farmer. We wish to save him from the over-friendly politicians. There are all kinds of friendly persons just at this time ready to "do something for the farmer." One of the grand strokes that some of them especially wish to put through is a law to "protect the farmer from the unscrupulous farm machinery concerns." There has been considerable agitation on the part of certain elements for uniform machinery laws to protect the farmers. Possibly there is some need of protection in obscure cases where illiterate farmers do not understand the papers they sign when they buy a tractor or a binder and agree to pay in a certain length of time. We have heard of none where specific cases were mentioned and the name of the farmer was brought up and backed by sworn statement. From the standpoint of the farm machinery man, let us see how the situation appears.

The machinery concerns want uniform contracts, something that will protect them and give the honest farmer his machinery at a price that is not forced up because he has to carry the burden of the dead-end. They do object, and object strenuously, to the proposed clause being brought forward by certain men before the Alberta Legislature to give the farmer a twelve-day trial of all harvester machinery with the option of turning back at the company's expense at the end of that time. Can you blame them? A "smooth" farmer—and even the best farming communities have them—can harvest his crop, refuse the machinery and turn it back on the company, repeating the process with different companies the following years, or selling out and moving to a new section of the country. As to defective machinery and worn-out machines, which are the excuses of such a proposterous law, we think that practically every machinery concern doing business in Western Canada is doing everything in its power to put out the best machinery it is possible to make. They have to do this to hold business. If any person certainly agree that a move to allow buyers twelve days' use of machinery with nothing to bind them to pay anything will not do. It will keep many farmers who need machinery from getting it. The machinery dealers will not allow any sales on this kind of an agreement. They will only sell to farmers whom they know from actual experience will meet all their obligations and not attempt to dodge them under technicalities. Fifty per cent. of the farmers now operating in the West would not be here had not the big concerns compelled them to buy their machinery bills. According to the manager of one of the big concerns that sells machinery in every part of the world, the farm machinery concerns are compelled to be banks for the farmers, carrying 25 to 50 per cent. of the sales on the books at all times. He also stated emphatically that men who were not able to pay were never closed out and forced to pay. Only those who are known to be able to pay and are trying to dodge payment are compelled to pay. All these litigations and the extra banking on the part of the machinery concerns are, of course, paid in the end by the honest farmer.

A significant fact regarding the machinery business is the prosperity certain sections are shown to have from collections. One concern, with branches at Winnipeg, Regina, Saskatoon, Yorktown, Calgary and Edmonton, in Western Canada, has tabulated the collection figures for its branches. The collections for the Edmonton branch are several per cent. better than any other in the West. A fact the local manager lays to mixed farming here. Where the packing plants and dairies are building up the country, there is the section that always has money to meet the obligations in spite of crop failures.

It is not our intention to put this poor fellow stand in the machinery business. The concerns are able to take care of themselves, and we will more than likely take a few knocks at them ourselves in future editorials whenever we think they need it. That's our ultimate aim, however, as the farmer should allow a group of politicians to rush through a bunch of crazy bills that will hurt the farmer's business in their efforts to keep the farmers out of the soil from getting too deeply interested in making of administration. Candidly, what do you think, all politics laid aside?—Alberta Homestead.

How Much is Your Brain Earning?

A high school education is worth as much to the farmer as $6,000 worth of 5-per-cent. bonds, according to investigations made by the authorities of the farm management division of the Cornell University. A complete agricultural survey of Tompkins county, New York, showed that the owners of farms who went only to district schools made an annual average labor income of $313, while those who went to high school made $629. These farmers who had more than a high school education made an average labor income of $847. The average farmer receives no hired man, according to these figures, one-third of them receiving less than does the hired man, while the other third receive much more. It was also discovered that the larger the farm the larger the profit per acre, due to a great extent to the fact that more high-class machinery is used on the larger farm than is now thoroughly economical on the small farm. On the larger farms it was also noted that the farmer who managed several hired hands received more from their services than where they worked singly. The farms operated at a loss were the single purpose, or specialized farms, while those making the most money were the most diversified.

In other words, planning paid in farming operations, and planning best came naturally from those farmers who had the most education. There are several lessons to be seen from these figures taken from one county in old New York where conditions are so radically different from what they are in Western Canada. Most of these lessons apply to our conditions, however. For instance, the use of more labor-saving machinery should be brought to bear on the smaller farms. This can be done through co-operation of several small farmers for the larger machines, such as tractors, threshing machines, ensilage cutters, etc. It must ultimately come, however, as the smaller the farm, the less waste can there be afforded if a profit is to be made from that farm.

Mixed farming is another lesson that is brought out in these investigations. Mixed farming is farm-work farming

Instead of one element in the soil standing all the strain year after year, crops are grown which rest the soil. Of course, the best have the least proportionate strength in the soil. Other crops that return the elements severely taxed are used, as are also live stock, the most natural system of permanent farming. Of course, the farmer with the greatest knowledge of chemistry, bookkeeping, seed testing, breeding, or at least a farmer who knows how to study out these points from books, farm papers, and actual experience, is the one who is best fitted to put them into efficient practice on his own farm. Hence the reason for the difference in earning power of the trained mind and the one not trained. By the way, how much is your brain earning on your farm? Is it below the hired hand standard, on a level with it, or far ahead—Alberta Homestead.

Must Have Teetotal Militia

As long as the Hon. S. M. Hughes holds the portfolio of militia and defence, the canton for the sale of alcoholic liquors in militia camps in Canada will be conspicuous by its absence. Considerable pressure has been brought to bear to induce him to modify this determination, but he remains adamant. He considers the best soldier is the total abstainer from strong drinks, and his opinion is backed up by the experience of commanding officers in the British Army. The sum drinks in moderation, as a rule, on occasions indulges too freely, and thus disturbs his physical equilibrium, rendering him less fit for active strenuous duties. This has been proved, not only in the piping times of peace, but in the thrilling adventures of active service.

The temperance man can endure greater hardships without physical deterioration than he who indulges in the cup that cheers, and in regiments where temperance rules there is less crime, and more proficiency than in those where the most popular rendezvous is the canton.

ed to be the most likely man to make other and greater sacrifices for his country, unless he is willing to do it by the force of circumstances. Of course, if alcoholic liquors are prohibited in the men's canteen they should be rigorously excluded from the officers' mess.

English Want Alberta Barley

As a result of advice in marketing given him through the Canadian Pacific Railway Department of Natural Resources, Nick Taitinger, of Charlottetown, has been able to sell his 1912 barley crop at a price that will net him fully 20 cents per bushel above prevailing market prices and at the same time establish a most profitable market for the barley crop of his district.

A short time ago Mr. Taitinger submitted a sample of his two-rowed Chevalier barley to the Agricultural Branch of the Natural Resources Department. The sample, which showed the crop to be of excellent quality, was immediately sent to Hugh Baird & Sons, one of the most famous malsters in Great Britain. The firm replied that the barley was just the kind they were looking for and offered $1.02 per bushel, which, after carriage is deducted, nets Mr. Taitinger about 70 cents a bushel.

Mr. Taitinger's crop took the championship at the last Dry Farming Congress and has been in great demand, his neighbors offering 75 to 80 cents per bushel for seed. The whole crop could have been disposed of at that price, but Mr. Taitinger is looking to the future of the barley exporting industry of his district. So he divided his crop into two parts, one to export to the malsters mentioned and the other to sell for seed in his district.

The Agricultural Branch of the C. P. R. Department of Natural Resources is at all times willing to help any farmer in the marketing of his crop. All he has to do is to send a small sample, about eight ounces, of his grain, with the government permission test. The price is absolutely free of charge.

I have been suffering from Kidney Trouble for over five long years. I had been treated by some of our best Physicians but without relief and I lost over fifteen pounds. One day I met one of our leading hotelkeepers, who had been cured by your famous GIN PILLS, and he advised me to try them. So I bought two boxes of GIN PILLS and before I had used one box I felt a big change. Before I finished the second one I was completely cured. I can assure you I can hardly believe it for I had only known what I know now. I would not have spent one Cent Hundred Dollars for nothing when two boxes of GIN PILLS cured me.

THE EASTERN EUROPEAN SITUATION.

It is now just three months since war was declared by the Balkan Allies, a brief enough period measured by the ordinary standards of warfare, but far longer than the amazing swiftness of the Allies' success had led the world to expect. It was, of course, inevitable that Turkey's traditional skill in procrastination—to say nothing of the other difficulties which latent became imminent so soon as the controversy was removed from the field of battle to the Council Chamber—would make the task of formulating conditions of peace both difficult and lengthy. But most disinterested (and probably interested) observers hoped that even at the last moment the Peace Conference would find some accepted, if not wholly acceptable, solution, at any rate with the aid of the Ambassadors' Conference. Yet the issues are again put to the arbitrament of war and though it may be that blood and iron will prove the shortest way to peace, but few will venture to prophesy when that peace will be made.

For despite victories of the field and purporting in London, the questions at issue are hardly less easy of solution, though it is true they are more patent. With the present division of power in Europe and at the present stage in the Europeanization of Western and Middle Asia, there is probably no place in the world where the existing losses and dog of war arouse so many questions of burning interest to the whole world. Most of the causes for which war springs—race antagonism, religious intolerance, the desire for freedom, ambition for power on behalf of a nation, the wish for extension of territory and the protection of commercial interests—all can be seen actuating the combatants or the diplomatists round the meeting place of east and west.

Starting in the Balkans, the issues at stake cause disturbances in the political waters which stretch wider and wider until they encircle the whole world. Within the peninsula itself in the present conditions of affairs there are problems of adjustment alone enough to task the wisdom of a Solon in whatever way peace is made. Success for the Allies indeed will hardly make their solution easier; the fate of Adrianople and Salonika, even paratively simple compared with the complication which would inevitably ensue should the Allies reach and enter Constantinople. On the whole it is probable that for the present a Turkish governed Constantinople will cause less trouble and heart burning than one in the hands of any conceivable successor, even if one could be agreed to. Macedonia has been called the apple of discord. In the making of peace, though it is one of several, Bulgaria can not forget that by the treaty of San Stefano of 1878, it was to have most of Macedonia; yet both Greece and Serbia have occupied parts of it and display no intention of falling in with the territorial divisions of the old treaty, at least so far as this region is concerned. Albania presents a further problem, no easier of solution because it is bound up with the claims of Serbia, and with Austria's unquestioned hostility to those claims in Albania and to a Serbian outlet on the Adriatic. There, however, the grant of some sort of autonomy to Albania and of commercial rights to Serbia in an Adriatic port will probably provide a way of peace, if not of contentment. It certainly will not solve permanently the differences between Serbia and the Dual Monarchy; for those are in some measure founded on the Pan-Serb ambitions of a section of Serbian opinion, ambitions which could only be achieved at the expense of Austria-Hungary, and so obviously unthinkable to that Empire.

As Serbia's aims inevitably bring her into conflict with Austria, so the actual and potential successes of Bulgaria have brought their extra-Balkan complications; no Balkan question indeed is over purely one for the peninsula and its inhabitants alone. Roumania has "baited" her demands for territory on the Black Sea from Bulgaria in return for non-interference and though it seems likely that these demands may be accommodated, either directly or through the mediation of the Powers, they are nevertheless disconcerting, if not more, not merely for the danger to Bulgaria from Roumania itself, but because behind Roumania looms the might of Russia. The scare of Russia in the whole formation of the Balkan Confederation, the formation of the Balkan League, the matter of speculation and inference rather than of fact. Yet whilst the further weakening of Turkey by a number of small states implies an increase of Russian power in the Levant, the permanent federation of the Balkan States would clearly be distasteful to her.

On the other hand—and here the circle widens still further—it is generally considered that the formation of the Balkan League, as a unit, would be on the side of the Triple Entente rather than on that of the Alliance. Certainly the League's formation and success have caused the index finger of the European balance to point perilously near the war mark, and it is far from steady yet. Mobilization by Austria has drawn forth preparation for counter-mobilization on the part of Russia; increase in the army estimates of Germany, strong evidence of an advance in the corresponding force in France, England has so far managed to preserve her attitude of neutrality though there has, of course, been a recrudescence of the sympathetic feeling so strongly aroused by Gladstone, and no one, least of all her own foreign office, forgets what may be implied by her "entente" with France and Russia. Still at the present moment the situation, so far as the peace of Europe is concerned, is less strained than it was even a few weeks ago; the relations between England and Germany, we are sure, are better than they have been for some time, and there is no so far postponed outbreak in itself an achievement, and some augury for the future. For whatever the fortune of war in the Balkans may bring in the near future, it cannot produce again the amazement which swept through all the capitals of Europe at the early and overwhelming successes of the Allies. These even diplomacy was taken unawares; now it is wide awake, and though the ways of diplomacy do not always lead through the valleys of peace, there seems more chance of their so doing now that, to change the figures, the tangled threads of the Balkan situation are more clearly distinguishable, for disentanglement can only come after recognition.

CENTRAL ALBERTA DEVELOPMENT LEAGUE.

Mr. J. N. Foley, of Lexington, Kentucky, was in Edmonton this week. Mr. Foley attended the U. S. Land Show at Chicago in the early winter and was attracted by the exhibit made there by the Central Alberta Development League, and in charge of the League exhibit there. As a result Mr. Foley has spent the last two months in Central Alberta, and left on Feb. 25th for his home in Kentucky for the purpose of bringing out his wife and family.

Mr. Foley is enthusiastic as to the resources and climatic conditions of Central Alberta, and during his stay in Alberta has been corresponding with a number of his Kentucky neighbors, and he stated to the Secretary of the League that as a result of at least twenty-five years of families will come to live in the province. Many of these will bring their families making a party of about 75. These are principally farmers in fairly prosperous circumstances, in a position to buy land.

Before leaving, Mr. Foley rented a farm for one of his Kentucky friends. Present indications point to a very extensive movement of the parcel post in the Central Alberta next spring.

PARCEL POST COMING.

Since the institution of the parcel post in the United States there has been renewed talk of a similar institution for Canada in connection with our postal system. We are heartily in accord with this movement; in fact, we want it immediately. Practically every other civilized country in the world has a parcel post, and only the control of the railroad and express companies in the United States and Canada have delayed the institution of the parcel post on this continent. We are not at all enthusiastic about the working of this parcel post, however, by the forces which now handle our mail. The handling of the mail is an enormous job, and one need not have such a fertile imagination to picture the handling of our mail by this branch of the government. Unfortunately, the civil service is not what it is in other countries, and the blundering work of our postal clerks with their careless and slovenly service is a crime which the ordinary person suffers in a restricted manner because he can see no use in saying anything. Personally, we are for a rigid renovation of the civil service, especially as regards the postal service, with the payment of respectable wages and salaries to the men who handle our mail before the parcel post is inaugurated. The government is promising a parcel post for Canada immediately. We hope we get it—now we will, in fact, but let us have a parcel post that will be efficient and a matter of pride to the country.

Save the Heifers

The move on the part of the National Live Stock Exchange of the United States to have a penalty fixed for the slaughter of female cattle under three years seems not such a foolish move after all. These men are practical, hard-headed business men who are probably closer in touch with live stock conditions at the world's greatest live stock markets than any other class of men. If they are so, there is some reason for the rest of us to worry. The consumer should be hardest hit, perhaps, but the farmer and the business man, in fact the whole fabric of civilization should be concerned. When Argentine proposed the protection of female cattle under the age of seven years recently, it was so far away that the ordinary reader did not give it more than a passing thought. It was merely a "news story" of the day, and many of our "just now" chroniclers, Argentine had never out a great deal in our mind, anyway, and as their entire wealth was built up on the cattle industry and a douth threatened it, we considered it but natural that the cattle industry should get searched over the situation.

But in the case of the Live Stock Exchange, we have members of all the live stock changes of the United States, the wealthiest nation in the world, manifesting such concern over the waning beef industry of their country that they move to ask every state legislature to pass laws that will keep every female calf born in the country until it reaches the age of three years. These laws are recommended for a period of ten years, or until the normal beef supply is restored. There is some doubt as to the constitutionality of such laws, even if they were passed by the legislature of the various states. But the move shows the desperate situation, just the same. Passing such laws would be a matter that any person who has seen the fine hand of the farmer in his native country. Naturally, the farmer resents being told what he can and cannot do as regards the running of his own farm, especially when he can see better immediate results to himself in the way he is already farming. It costs the farmer a sum that is worth while to raise a heifer calf to maturity in these days of $100-$300 land. Immense pressure would be brought to bear to kill such a heifer, no doubt, and it is the proper way to get the same results, but education won't bring the results and bring them fast enough, according to these men who have their pocketbooks on the pulse of the cattle industry, so to speak. They have watched the rise of the cattle business, seen the middle west blossom as the packing plants were erected, and the rush of vast herds of cattle succeed the buffalo in the far west, making the entire country rich. Thousands of prime beefs were exported annually. The range disappeared under the expansion of the ranch and the rush of the homesteader. The cattle business had no time to adjust itself and give the farmer time to start into the beef growing as well as the beef feeding business. Consequently the cashing in of visible supplies came rapidly and cost of finished products mounted even more swiftly. Today we see these exchange members begging the law-makers to compel the farmers to grow beef. It is a serious situation. Will it work out itself through education, or will the law step in and compel the farmer to save the heifers? Why not save them, anyway?

HIS BABY.

She is my mother, said the young man, but I call her my baby. She is eighty years old. Old people are very like babies, and we ought to love them, for of such is the kingdom of heaven. I have an idea that life comes up things. While I was young and helpless she took care of me; now I take care of her. I am paying my debt.

She never left me alone when I was an infant. Now I do not leave her alone. She was patient with me then; now I am patient with her. She fed me; now I feed her. I clothe and keep her as she did me. She sacrificed her young life to me; I am glad of every chance I have to sacrifice for her.

She loved me when I was ignorant, awkward, needing constant care, and all because I was born from her body and part of her soul. Now, every feeling, and trait of childishness in her endears me to her, for no reason, except that she is my mother. By so much as she is a tax on my time, attention and money, I love her. She shall not triumph over me in the duty of judgment; for my tenderness shall equal hers. She watched with me until I grew up; I shall watch with her till she steps into heaven.

THE NEW BABY.

London lends the fashions in many things, but if London is to be allowed to extend this leadership to all things, there must be something like a revolution. London now sounds the knell of the fat baby. No more will the weight-bearing joy in the hearts of mothers, if an increased weight is shown. Among fifty or sixty babies shown at a recent show organized by the Church Medical Mission, there was but one which could be called fatstuffed and it did not get a look in as regards the prize. Weight, in fact, was not considered at all in judging the qualifications of the youngsters, for general conditions, cleanliness, feeding and teething were the important things.

The modern infant in arms is said to be as different from its predecessors of five or six years ago as chalk is from cheese. The baby "John Bull" baby has gone out of fashion. The up-to-date baby has an albin touch in its face; its button nose has a touch of insolence and audacity, and it has the "rare smile" which used to be the special prerogative of the lady novelists' hero. But it is a smile as subtle as that of Mona Lisa.

The modern baby is more intellectual than emotional. There was wonderfully little weeping at the Hoxton baby show. But there was a great deal of self respect. "Let me see its teeth," said the lady judge, apropos of a sprout of three months, who had walked straight out of a picture by Arthur Rackman, we read. The little morsel with its infinitesimal fist tried to push the lady away. An old-fashioned baby would have yelled the house down under similar circumstances.

Say to "the Hoxton baby," "Diddleme, then," or "O, the pretty little thing," and it will look at you with cold disapproval. Its predecessor of half a dozen years ago would have gurgled with delight. But address the twentieth century child in John-onian dignity of diction, and it will smile, its subtle, intelligent smile and become your friend for evermore.

A MATTER OF DISCIPLINE.

(Regina Standard.) A particularly broad-minded and noble Montreal Anglican clergyman delivered a sermon from a Presbyterian pulpit without the permission of the authorities of his own church. So there is trouble.

Those who remember the kindly message sent by the Anglican Church in Canada to the Methodists, Presbyterians and Congregationalists when these latter three proposed to unite their efforts may find some cause for surprise in the attitude of the Anglican Church to this clergyman. It should be understood, however, that those who question his action do so not on the ground that it was improper for him to preach from the pulpit of another church, but on the ground that he should first have sought and received permission from his own church authorities.

There is no suggestion that it was improper for him to preach from a Presbyterian pulpit. It is purely a matter of church discipline and the interpretation of canonical law.

We recollect very distinctly that Canon Hill, when he was a plain rector, addressed a social gathering from the pulpit platform of the old Methodist church in this city. We never heard that he was disciplined for it. Rev. Hill took advantage of the opportunity by reminding the Methodists that they were an Anglican offshoot, and cordially invited them to return. Had the Methodist shown similar tact, he might have escaped criticism.

L. I. D. No. 399

Council of L. I. D. 399 met,
 Saturday, February 22, 1913,
 the following being present:
 Jas. Sharp (chair), M. Williams,
 J. A. Kasha, J. L. Storey, D.
 Foren and Jas. Edie.

Minutes of previous meeting
 read, and it was moved by Williams, seconded by Edie,
 that they be adopted as read.
 Carried.

Moved by Storey, seconded by Edie, that the accounts of Vickers & Garland be returned and an itemized account asked for. Carried.

Moved by Kasha, seconded by Williams, that the Secretary be instructed to write the Public Works Department what the district's liability would be in constructing and maintaining the said railway crossing, and also to ask the Public Works Department if they would communicate with the Railway Commission and ask them to direct the railway to keep up the said crossing when built. Carried.

Moved by Foren, seconded by Kasha, that each councillor shall be appointed to act as a committee to look after the work in his own division. Carried.

Moved by Kasha, seconded
 Storey, that the several road committees be empowered to hire the teams of residents of the district to work on the roads of the several districts in which their lands are situated
 if the committee and foremen are satisfied that the teams of the residents are fit to do good work. Carried.

Moved by Foren, seconded by Williams, that Foren and Storey be appointed a committee to look over the road between Section 3, T. 41, R. 25, W. 4.
 Carried.

Moved by Kasha, seconded by Edie, that any ratepayers of L. I. D. 399 wishing to get "Boklan's" Cough Poison, the special prices given to L. I.
 Districts, must send in their orders to Secretary at once,
 special rates being 75c. for $1
 size packet. Carried.

Moved by Williams, seconded
 by Edie, that the Secretary-Treasurer be instructed to be prepared to give his bond at the next meeting. Carried.

Moved by Foren, seconded by Edie, that the meeting be adjourned to call of Secretary.
 Carried.

So Very Funny

Almost out here we can hear the roars of laughter from the Liberal side of the House of Commons as it watches the Government trying to force
 a man named Miller to divulge some facts. So frequently has the laughter
 been remarked in Liberal papers, with but little imagination
 we can hear and see the Liberals splitting their sides over the funny things that are happening. Funny! Yes, indeed. Here are those "nosy" Tories underneath $41,000 graft somebody got, and the man won't tell them who got it. See the joke?

My, my! Can't you see the humor in that? Here were some perfectly good Liberals pulling down $41,000 graft for giving a firm some contracts amounting to $121,000, and the Tories can't find out who got it.

Still, if we can hear the laughter way out here, we can also distinguish the slightly hollow note in it. We wonder what it means.

Surely it could not be that the Liberals are afraid of something getting out which wouldn't be at all nice for the Liberals! Surely it could not be that men high in the service of the recent Laurier government were cold-blooded grafters.

Why all the laughter? It is something of a joke on the country that it cannot compel
 a man who admits he corrupted his public men to tell whom he did corrupt, even though he has made still more high public life. It is something of a joke—but this laugh is not on anyone but the country and the people of the country.

If there was honor and decency in public life there would be no laughter over the incident. If there was determination to maintain British rather than Tammany standards in Canadian public affairs there would be no laughter.

But there is laughter, and the Liberal and Conservative
 speakers mock Conservatives
 with it, and, while Conservatives uncover a scandal under Liberal rule, Liberals uncover a scandal under Conservative rule.

There is laughter—and the crouching Tammany tiger, exemplifying the spirit of graft, pounces upon a country with that accompaniment.

Canada is drifting to a period
 when "public life" will be a new word of honor when honorable and decent men will no longer seek preferment in affairs of the nation, because they will not associate with thieves and bribe-mongers.

You judge a man not by what he promises to do, but by what he has done. That is the only true test. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy judged by this standard has no superior. People everywhere speak of it as the highest form of praise. For sale by Lacombe Drug Co. (2)

THE BOY AND THE CIGAR-ETTE

The boy with a cigarette in his mouth stands a poor chance in the presence of the fellow who lets his brains grow without the handicap imposed by the use of a narcotic.

Fortunately, many boys who are attracted by the smoking habit are wise enough to cut it out before the cigarette gets a grip on their nerves. And it is well that they are, for if there is any fellow who gets the worst end of a bad habit it is that fellow who knows he is going wrong and feels guilty
 and yet has not enough brain bone to smother the demands of the habit and keep himself clean.

The use of the cigarette is the boy's effort to emulate the man.
 His motive is essentially complete. And we shall not be fuss with the lad whose inflated mind precludes full growth. But when the boy resorts to cigarettes and lets the strength of his mind and body go up in smoke, because he sees the big fellows enjoying their pipe cigar, he shows that he has the wrong idea and needs to learn that no thought, word or action which causes needless waste of nerve strength can ever assist the development of true manhood.

Obstacles will not turn into stepping stones to success at the approach of cigarette-soaked brains. If you are after the best, remember that boys and cigarettes are poor business partners.

ROYAL PURPLE
Stock & Poultry Specifics

FREE
 We will send absolutely free
 the asking, postpaid, one of our large 4-page books (with insert) on the common diseases of stock and poultry. This book is full of all kinds of light and heavy, colds and maras, which cause and fattening losses, also how to feed and fatten stock so that they will lay well in winter as in summer. It contains 300 illustrations from all over Canada from people who have used our books. No farmer should be without it.

You can catch cattle and hogs in a month's time by using our Royal Purple Stock Specifics than you could possibly do without it thereby saving a month's feed and labor and the cost to you will not be more than $1.50 for six pigs or $1.00 for one steer. It will keep your hogs in show condition with ordinary feed. If you have a poor, miserable-looking hog animal on your place try it on this one first and see the marvellous result which will be obtained. Our Stock Specific will increase the milk flow three to five lbs. per cow per day while being fed to be stable. A 50c package will last a cow or hogs 10 days.

ROYAL PURPLE POULTRY SPECIFIC
 will make your fowls lay just as well in the winter as in the summer, and will keep them free from disease. These goods are over undervalued. We do not use any cheap fillers in our packages, entirely a fact from any on the market at the present time.

A LACOMBEITE ABROAD

Announcement was made in the dinner at Hotel Potter, Santa Barbara, that upon our arrival in Los Angeles, a reception was to be held for us in the Chamber of Commerce.

A cordial welcome was tendered us. Some rather extravagant and things were said of Southern California.

Dr. Keady and others of our party spoke fluently and forcibly, referring to the courtesy and kindness of the citizens, their beautiful country and marvelous development. They also referred to our great heritage in Canada and the thousands of Americans who settled in Canada and became still more prosperous and contented settlers.

After being treated to orangeade and crackers (knowing Canadians would indulge in nothing stronger) we were conducted through this large building where there is permanently an exhibition of California products.

The following day, and the last in our itinerary, was a trip in special day coaches.

Redlands is about 60 miles east of Los Angeles. We were treated to an auto ride around Stanley Heights and Prospect Park.

The scenery from the Heights, the home of many millionaires, brings irrepressible exclamations of surprise and delight from even the most apathetic of our company, as the vision makes a rapid survey of the beautiful orchard-covered slopes, to the pretty little city at their base, and upward to the grand mountains of rugged outlines that bound the view.

All about on either border of the curving drives of these inimitable parks, beautiful, rare vegetation grows in profusion, arranged with the art that comes closest to nature.

The soil will successfully grow almost anything that comes out of the ground. Olives, apples, peaches, figs, pomegranates, quinces, oranges, lemons, pomegranates (grape fruit) are bountifully produced, besides minor semi-tropical fruits.

Oranges are the chief crop. We sampled the ripe oranges direct from the trees and will not readily forget the fine flavor. Orange groves of good bearing age will give packing-house returns of about $300 per acre. Four-year-old groves are self-sustaining. Nearly 5,000 carloads of oranges have been shipped from Redlands in one year.

Four miles from Redlands is Loma Linda Sanitarium, a delightful place for the overworked business man or those of nervous temperament. It is open to all except contagious diseases.

Forty minutes ride in our cars bring us to famous Riverside, of which the majority of us have heard or read.

Riverside is the centre of the largest orange-growing district in the world, in fact it is situated in one large grove comprising over 30,000 acres, traversed by driveways famed for their beauty. These drives through groves of stately eucalypt and beautiful palm trees, separate the roadway on either side from magnificent groves of oranges and lemons. The annual output is 8,000 carloads.

Unique among Riverside's many attractions is the Glenwood Mission Inn, a long, low, cloistered building following the style of the old Spanish missions, enclosing a spacious court, where stands the old adobe (once a residence, but now used as a tea room), and the stately campanile, or bell tower, in which are a rare old chime of Mission Bells, ringing out at morning, noon and evening, the matins, angelus and vespers as they did in the long ago.

I said in former notes that Del Monte was the most interesting hostelry; save one, on our route, Well, Glenwood Mission Inn is the exception. I will be as brief as possible.

The Inn is the reflection of a personality, and that man is Frank A. Miller, the originator, planner, builder and owner of this hotel, and has lived in Riverside since 1874.

Mr. Miller, appreciating the historic, romantic and sentimental importance of the old mission buildings, has reproduced in Riverside the actual outlines of the Franciscan missions with a background of twentieth century luxury.

"Eat, friend," this is your house," is the motto in Spanish that greets you at the main entrance.

Then in the lobby, hung in a conspicuous place, is the old sentiment, "Ye cannot expect to be both grand and comfortable."

The main building was erected in 1902 and the cloister wing in 1910. The structure is made of brick and concrete and is as solid as a mountain. It is three stories high and occupies an entire city block. Around the sides of the open court extends a pergola covered with running vines full of purple clustered grapes. The walls of grey concrete are almost hidden by Boston Ivy.

Everywhere are easy chairs, couches, restfulness, greenery, comfort and the bloom and fragrance of flowers.

Here in the refectory or dining room we lunched. The art glass windows represent varied scenes, the cloistered architecture in the life of the old missions. The grapes, the harvest sheaves, the dances, the brown-robed Padres are portrayed on these windows.

The waiters, in soft-slipped feet, know just how to minister to your wants without overdoing it.

Menu cards were not used, but in the four or five courses, they brought us just what we wanted. If you are desirous of obtaining an appetite, come here and dine.

After feasting we stroll through some intensely interesting rooms. The furniture seems to fit into the room. There is no clash—all is harmony. I learned that the interior decorations and arrangements were largely to Mrs. Miller and Mr. Miller's sister, who are certainly artists. Here we are in the eighteenth century with twentieth century luxury, electric lights, etc.

The cloister music room resembles a chapel. Music here daily at one, five and eight p.m., furnished by the cathedral organ and harp.

When the lights are turned low and you sit here in one of the massive eucalypt chairs, you can see but faintly the royal banners and escutcheons of gold, mellowed with age, the glint of war-worn knightly armor that adorn the walls, the beautiful St. Cecilia windows, then you can appreciate the tones of the mighty organ as it seems to tell you the story of your past life, its struggles, fears, hopes, despair, laughter and tears. I will never forget this experience.

The paintings in this room are from Mexico and Spain—many of them from two to three hundred years old.

We must not forget that these Padres brought the palm, olive, vine, date and orange. They were civilizers and builders. Chief among them was Junipero Serra. At 56 he began the founding of missions, and died when 71. He walked up and down its wilderness time and again, all the way from San Diego to San Francisco, and died in the harness, planning to the very last how to reach the Indian heart and lift him to a higher plane of life. When we think of his great sacrifice, but not for the yellow metal, we feel like taking off our hats to this hero.

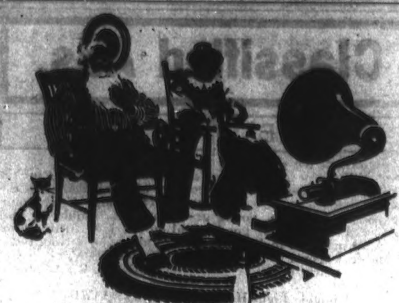

We next visit the Garden of the Bells. Here is a copper bowl that belonged to Paul III., who excommunicated Henry VIII. of England in 1533 for marrying Anne Boleyn. There were the days of Luther, the Reformation and things were lively throughout Europe. Another bell is suspended, cast in Spain in 1247; another in 1258.

We walked through many portions of the building and found it to be one vast museum. Everywhere we stumbled upon old furniture and works of art. The large fireplace must be very attractive in cool weather.

STRONGLY ADVISES "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

Because They Cured Him, And They Will Cure You

MR. ALAN MCNEER

WALKERBURY, Ont., May 9th, 1912.
"I have been in Walkerville in business for a good many years and many of my customers know that my health, for long periods was precarious. My trouble was extreme Nervousness, brought on by Indigestion and Dyspepsia, from which I suffered in the most severe form. It was so bad that I could not sleep before about four in the morning. I noticed one of your published testimonials of how someone had used "Fruit-a-tives" for similar trouble and asked Mr. Hunter, my druggist, his opinion on the matter and he advised their use. I immediately procured several boxes and I am pleased to say that I now enjoy splendid health, and could not possibly feel better. I can eat with every degree of satisfaction and sleep without an effort. I strongly advise anyone suffering from like complaints, to commence using "Fruit-a-tives". ALEX. McCARTER, sec. a box, 6 for $2.00—trial size, etc. Advertiser from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

BENTLEY NOTES

March came in like a lion; we look for a lamb-like exit.

B. E. Williams is keeping the telephone central in his hotel. Miss Edna Hutchinson is acting as hello girl.

Harry Dameron and family, of Olive, is visiting at his brother's here for a few days.

Don't forget the old Yomen Dances at the McPherson Hall on Friday night of this week.

The Bentley Amateur Dramatic Society will produce "Facing the Music" at the Peasey Hall, Rimby, on Saturday night, March 8th.

We are feeling considerably puffed up since reading the write-up on our presentation of "Facing the Music" at Bentley on February 21st in the Western Globe by the editor, who was at the show in person, and apparently appreciated the same.

His portrayal of the characters was very good, and especially "Jack" began to realize the various positions that he holds in the play.

Chas. M. Chase has purchased the J. B. McPherson house and lots here and moved into same on Saturday last.

Arthur Fields purchased the Ede Stevens art property here, and is taking possession today.

James P. McPherson is remodeling the interior of his store building and roofing his side porch, making quite an improvement to the place.

Messrs. Dameron and McPherson have sales at Gibby on Tuesday, north of Bentley on Thursday, and near Rimby on Saturday of this week. See bills.

The writer attended the hockey game at Lacombe last Friday night between Castor and Lacombe. The game was very good.

WITTENBURG

We have been having a spell of cold weather, the thermometer going down to 30 below zero.

Mr. Frank Hancher is hauling lumber to build a new house on his place.

There will be a dance in the J. Evert's Hall about the 20th of March.

We forgot to mention that Lindy Dahl purchased a log house for his homestead at the box sale last week.

Mr. Orsen Archer is on a visit to Calgary to see his friends.

Two bridges are going to be built on the Medicine River, north of Wittenburg, this summer. The townships are supplying material and the government bridge crew will do the erecting.

Mr. John Olsen purchased two of the purebred cows at Mowbray's sale, and is going in for raising good stock.

In aid of the building fund. Ladies are requested to bring boxes. Everybody come.

The Co-Operative Company are enlarging their stock and have put in a supply of hardware. Anyone wishing to purchase carpenter tools will find a good assortment to choose from.

It is reported that work on the C. P. R. bridge over the Saskatchewan River at the Mountain House has commenced. As soon as this bridge is completed, the C. N. R. Branch line will be extended to the coal mines, as the grading will soon be finished.

SPRUCEVILLE

A large party, got up by Messrs. McPherson, Dameron and Swanson, surprised the home of Mr. and Mrs. Langrock last Friday night. About seventy-five people gathered between 8 and 9 p.m., and with the assistance of a few of the young men the house was soon put in shape for dancing.

Mr. Dave Cameron was the first to start the music, and as the floor was in good condition the crowd was soon on its feet. At midnight supper was served, and after that we had the pleasure of a song by Roy Lee and Robert Gibson.

Music was then started and the crowd made merry until 4.30, when everybody went home feeling much the worse for wear, but looking for another pleasant evening soon.

Miss Gertrude Drader will not return to Calgary until next September.

We are glad to report that Mr. J. Kasha is able to be out again after his severe attack of the grippe.

Mr. and Mrs. J. McNab went Sunday with Mr. and Miss McLean.

Mr. T. Southward went down to Calgary last Friday to meet his brother Jack, who has returned from England. His bride will come out in June.

Mrs. McLennan and children have returned after a three months' visit to her old home in the States.

Trout's Sale April 3

On account of his sale advertised for the 20th inst. conflicting with other sales in the district, Roy H. Trout has decided to postpone his until Thursday, April 3rd, when it will positively be held. Watch for his sale bills later, as he has a lot of valuable stock and implements to dispose of.

Board of Trade

The Board of Trade rooms in the Day Block are open to the public at all hours now, and Mr. Nicholson, Assistant Secretary, and Publicity Commissioner, will be pleased to see and answer all others requiring information with reference to the district. Mr. Nicholson is at present very busy preparing articles of great importance to the district, which will be published in the Western Globe and other papers through out the Dominion.

All farmers in the district are invited to bring visiting friends to the Board Rooms, and can be assured of a hearty welcome.

Secretary Halpin is arranging with papers outside to publish news of the district at frequent intervals, and by this means the Lacombe District will receive very valuable publicity at no cost to the public.

TREATMENT OF SEED TO PREVENT SMUT.

There are two kinds of wheat smut—loose smut and stinking or ball smut. Both can be prevented by treating the seed and rotating the crops.

The spores of both kinds of smut are carried by the seed but the spores of loose smut may also be carried in the soil from one year to another. Treating the seed prevents stinking smut, but loose smut requires that the seed be treated and that the ground on which it grew be planted to another crop the following year.

The stinking or ball smut is the kind most commonly found. It destroys the seed and the only way while the loose smut destroys the grain and chaff entirely, and the sooty mass of spores remain. The stinking smut gives off an offensive odor.

The following formalin treatment will prevent stinking smut in wheat, also smuts which commonly affect barment, also stone treatment, and formalin treatment, the last of which is safest, most reliable and cheapest.

Secure a 40 per cent. solution of formalin at a reliable drug store. One pound of formalin is sufficient to treat from 2,000 to 2,500 pounds of wheat. Before mixing the solution, get the seed well ready. The solution is made by carefully mixing a one-pound bottle of the formalin with 40 gallons of water.

The seed may be treated by dipping or sprinkling. To dip, the seed may be placed in a gunny sack and the solution poured into a barrel or tank. The wheat should be immersed in this for at least ten minutes and then taken out and allowed to drain back into the barrel for a short time. The wheat should then be emptied into a pile in a clean place and covered with sacks or blankets for two hours, after which it should be thoroughly dried before sowing.

To sprinkle, prepare a clean place on a canvas or smooth floor. Thoroughly sprinkle the place with the solution before spreading the wheat on it.

Now thoroughly sprinkle the spread-out wheat and at the same time shake it over. Continue to sprinkle and shovel over the wheat until it is thoroughly moistened. Next, shovel the wheat into a pile and cover with sacks or blankets for two hours, after which it should be thoroughly dried before sowing.

It is also advisable to sprinkle the grain drill with the solution before using it. Exercise every precaution not to bring the treated seed in contact with any that has not been treated or in which it has contained smut wheat.

C. F. DAMRON AUCTIONEER

JOHN R. CRAIG, Owner. James P. McPHERSON, Clerk.

NOTE.—For this Sale we have listed one of the best lots of Live Stock to be sold at auction this spring. The Horses are mostly young, of good quality and are sure to prove good money-makers for you. The Mules listed are an extra good pair with plenty of weight and size. You will like them if you are in the market for a team of Mules of the right sort. The Cows listed are an exceptional good lot of Dual Purpose Cows, having been selected by Mr. Craig for their ability to produce in the dairy and at the same time raise Calves that will make feeders of the right sort. The Brood Sows are mostly high-grade Duroc Jerseys and are all safe in pig. As the owner is leaving the country, everything listed will be sold absolutely without reserve. Come early and be in time for the opening of this Sale, which will be at 11 o'clock sharp.

Of Local Interest

Parties whose taxes are not paid up to December 31, 1912, will notice an advertisement to their interest in another column. The Town of Lacombe has taken the necessary steps under the Act to take title to all such land, and as soon as the advertising preliminary is carried out, all lands in arrears will become vested in the Town of Lacombe. The Secretary-Treasurer is now getting abstracts of title for all the delinquent property from the registry office. These preliminaries are costly to the lands affected. All lands on which taxes are not paid become the property of the Town after sixty days from this date, and while the owners have the opportunity of redeeming same for a time, the expense goes on until such redemption is made. In the meantime what practically amounts to a judgment is registered against the lands in arrears, and no transaction can be put through until the lands are cleared by the Town.

Two young men were before the court on Tuesday last charged with supplying an interdiction with liquor. It was shown that the accused were not aware that the person was interdicted when they gave him the liquor, and on the application of A. M. McDonald, for the defence, the charges were dismissed. The interdiction was fined $5 and costs for his little celebration.

HIGH SCHOOL VS. OLIVE.—On Saturday afternoon last in a clean, fast match, the Lacombe High School hockey team defeated the Olive Seniors by the score of 3 to 1.

The Randy Rams, in the play, but the class of hockey put up by both teams warranted a much larger crowd than was in attendance. As this is only the High School boys second appearance this season, we may safely anticipate something of the real article in any games they may play in the future.

From the first sound of the bell the play was fast, and for a time neither team could score, but soon the better team work and condition of the High School boys showed itself and the score steadily rose till at full time it stood at 9 to 3.

LACOMBE DISTRICT U. F. A. MEETING.

A meeting of the board of directors of the Lacombe District U. F. A. was held in the Town Hall of Lacombe in the afternoon of Feb. 25th, 1913. The body of men present exhibited marked enthusiasm. Many schemes for financing were brought up and discussed thoroughly. It is noteworthy that together with the zeal and enthusiasm manifested that there was a general determination to proceed cautiously and to lay a foundation for work and growth which would be permanent. Arrangements were made to commence business at once, and Messrs. Stanley and Winslow were appointed distributing agents.

HOSPITAL MEETING.

The annual meeting of the Lacombe General Hospital was held in the Town Hall on Thursday evening last. The question of building an addition to the Hospital was discussed and the conclusion arrived at that until the present building was paid for no other outlay should be made. The question of providing a fire escape for the Hospital was solved by the offer of A. M. Campbell to provide same free of charge. His offer was unanimously accepted, and a vote of thanks tendered him. Mrs. Burris reported the financial end of the institution under her charge to be in splendid shape, and expected to have enough money to pay the interest and other items in connection with the building as they came due.

The Board renewed the same that C. R. Denike fills the vacancy on the Board caused by W. F. Puffer's resignation.

ACADEMY NOTES.

Elder J. C. Christensen, accompanied by P. O. Johnson, has gone to British Columbia in search of land.

H. G. Knutson left yesterday for Calgary, where he will receive medical treatment.

The regular meeting of the Academy Board is called for Tuesday, March 11. A recital of the public speaking and the musical departments will be held next Tuesday evening at 7.30 in the Academy Chapel. A cordial invitation is extended to all our friends to join us at this time.

DISTRICT COURT.

District Court was held here on the 26th inst. Judge Lees presiding. There were several cases on the docket. The first case was Hobbs vs. Smith, a suit for $15 for green feed supplied the latter. Smith put in a counter claim against Hobbs for $82. The Judge found in favor of Hobbs, and dismissed the counter claim. E. H. Jones appeared for the plaintiff; MacDonald & McBride for defendant.

In Beach vs. Randler, a case arising out of the weight of hay supplied the latter, the plaintiff was awarded his claim. E. H. Jones and MacDonald & McBride appeared for plaintiff and defendant respectively.

Watt vs. Storey; Egg Baking Powder Co. vs. Uxquhart & Co. and Randal vs. McDermott were laid over until the May court.

In two other actions, Messrs. MacDonald & McBride secured judgment.

ALBERTA INDUSTRIAL ACADEMY.

FARMERS WHO SUCCEED.

Right now, before he decides upon what course he will put in this spring, is the time for the Alberta farmer to figure to what extent he will go into live stock feeding during the winter of 1913-14. Last year the out-turn of wheat from the province and British Columbia while oats production took a decided jump. This encouraging sign should be even more evident during the coming season. Western Canada's largest live stock expert states that an all-around feeder cannot be beaten and nowhere can better crops of oats be grown than in Alberta. Every

Alberta farmer should consider oats his feeding crop, but he should not be satisfied with simply raising the grain. He should cut some green for fodder and utilize the balance of his crop for chop and feed every ounce of it right on his place. The Alberta farmer should get no idea that live stock feeding operations require elaborate or expensive plants. There is not a single district in the province where stock cannot be wintered out of doors. In fact, those who have fed both inside and outside say that the animals do much better in the open. Cattle hogs and sheep will repay those fattening them during the winter even if the feeding stock has to be purchased. Agribusiness here may get many profitable lessons by studying the experience of husbandmen in the older districts. Our soil is probably the most fertile in the world, but there is no use trying to feed ourselves into thinking that it will stand continuous cropping to grain and give paying crops forever without fertilization. In addition to this is the fact that mixed farming pays a continuous income. Those who have practiced it in Alberta have found the system good.

For instance, a farmer writing to a friend the other day, in the course of his letter, said: "A mixed farmer always has something to sell if it is only a pig or some butter. It is surprising how handy the price of a good hog comes in when you go to pay your store bill. And again it is sometimes a $500 team of horses that makes the mixed farmer smile. Because generally it is the straight grower who is the buyer. The same day came a letter to the same party from a farmer in Iowa who has bought a section here and is coming up in the spring. He said in part: "I want you to have six or eight grade dairy cows and some brood sows ready to turn over to me when I arrive. I don't want to have to wait until I get a crop before my land starts to make money for me. I'm going to start right in making money from the day I arrive." He is an experienced farmer and knows the right way to conduct his business. Every Alberta farmer should make up his mind that this year he is going to raise some stock. Get some brood sows, dairy cows, feeder calves, sheep and start now to figure on raising the feed for them. Those in the districts where it has been proven successful should certainly start a plot of alfalfa. These to the north can rely upon the native hay for part of the ration. Oats and barley, the former either green or ripe and the latter for chop, give big crops in all parts of the province. When Alberta farmers make up their minds to stay with mixed farming, they will be in a position to laugh at frost or anything else that threatens their crops.
